

ROOSEVELT HAS SENT WARNING

To Interstate Commerce Commission Relative To The New Hours For Railroad Workers.

IT IS UP TO THE COMMITTEE NOW

Japan Hands O'Brien The State Papers--Is Uncle Sam To Enter Protest Relative To The Manchurian Problem?--Knox Introduces Bill.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt has sent a letter to the interstate commerce commission in which he indicates the importance of the commission's action with respect to the limitation of hours of labor of railway employees. He points out the possibility of a serious difference arising between the railroad companies and their employees with respect to wages and hours of labor. The president strongly deprecates making any issues between the railroad companies and their employees in the matter of wages if that can be avoided and instructs the commission that all possible information be given in advance so that the responsibility may be fairly placed and to hold it self in readiness to mediate any differences. Recommend Treaty. After hearing Secretary Root in explanation of the proposed new French arbitration treaty today, the senate committee on foreign relations ordered a favorable report upon the treaty. "In God We Trust." The house committee on commerce today agreed to report favorably (McKinley) bill requiring the restoration to the gold and silver coins the national motto, "In God we trust."

NEW COMPLICATIONS IN STATE CAPITAL MEET AND CONSIDER PROBLEMS OF TRADE

State Treasurer Dahl Has Again Discharged One of His Office Force. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Feb. 10.—State Treasurer Dahl again faces prosecution by an employee of his department who is seeking to avoid his duty to the state. Yesterday Treasurer Dahl gave the "grand bonus" to A. H. Wagner, assistant bookkeeper, who has been in the office for the past three years and whose salary has been $1,800 a year. Mr. Wagner came here from Milwaukee when ex-Treasurer John J. Kamp regained his office after being put out by Governor La Follette. Wagner was retained under the civil service law. In the letter of discharge, the treasurer informed the bookkeeper that the latter had been holding up business for unreasonable terms, that the people were complaining and that the letter set forth a number of specific instances in which the bookkeeper is said to have held up business. Mr. Dahl's attention to the civil service commission was to the effect that Wagner was from a week to ten days behind in his work. Mr. Wagner immediately retained the law firm of Aschmussen, E. T. Elver and F. M. Almer, former assistant secretary of state, who won in the recent reinstatement suit of Irving P. Leigh against Treasurer Dahl, and papers are now being drawn for a mandamus proceeding to compel the reinstatement of the discharged bookkeeper. Mr. Wagner declares that for some weeks, particularly since the reinstatement in response to an order of the circuit court, of Irving Leigh, the treasurer and his assistant, have been "after Mr. Wagner." The charge of work was charged upon him and that he was tantalized into making a sharp reply once to the assistant treasurer, whom he told to mind his own business. It is said that it will be difficult for Mr. Wagner to get his case tried on its merits, as the civil service law does not provide for a review of a discharged subordinate's competency. In the case of Mr. Leigh, a peculiar question arose. Mr. Leigh claimed that he did not resign, and Treasurer Dahl claimed that he made an oral resignation. This dispute was submitted to a jury and Mr. Leigh won. It is said, however, that Mr. Dahl will be temporarily appointed in place of Mr. Wagner.

C. DECISION IS DUE ON THURSDAY

Judge Ball Will Render Decision in Harriman-Fish Fight Over Voting Stock. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, Ill., Feb. 10.—Leaders of both factions among the stockholders of the Illinois Central Company are on edge in anticipation of the decision which is to be given by Judge Ball tomorrow in the suit instituted by Harriman-Fish and others to restrain the Harriman faction from voting 281,331 shares of the company's stock at the approaching annual meeting. This is the stock that was in dispute at the annual meeting last fall and the legal warfare over which caused the meeting to adjourn without definite result. The decision will probably show decisively whether the Harriman or Fish interests will be able to control the adjourned annual meeting, which is set for March 2nd.

NAVY WILL SELL WORN OUT SHIPS

Bids Opened Today for Sale of Two Worn-out Wooden Vessels of Civil War Fame. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—Bids were opened at the Navy department today for the sale of two vessels of the United States navy that long ago outlived their usefulness and are now destined for the junk heap. The two vessels are the civil war monitor Canonicus, now at the Norfolk navy yard, and the Plata at Mare Island. Of the two, the Canonicus is the only one that will live in the history of the navy. The Plata is interesting only as a relic of the old navy of the days before wooden ships had been displaced by ironclads. The Canonicus has had a somewhat memorable career. She was built at Boston in 1862 and is of 2100 tons displacement. For battery she carried two 15-inch smooth bore in her main battery, and in her secondary battery two 12-pounders. She was built at a cost of about $1,000,000. In the civil war she was commanded by Commander E. S. Parrott. She was at the engagement in the neighborhood of Dutch Gap, when she exchanged a lively fire with the Confederate battery at Howlett's Point. In the Spanish war the old monitor was fitted out, when it was thought that she would be assigned to duty as river gunboat in Cuba. In 1904, with her sister ship, the Java, Montana, Lehigh and Nahant, the Canonicus was stricken from the active list as having outlived her usefulness. At that time she was appraised at $15,000. Last year the government refitted the famous old craft at considerable expense for exhibition purposes at Jamestown.

LIVE QUESTIONS
WERE DISCUSSED

BEFORE SOCIAL UNION CLUB AT MONTHLY SESSION.

"PARK, AN EXTRAVAGANCE"

Listed Among F. M. Marzuff's Illustrations of Home-made Frenzied
Finance—Rev. R. M. Vaughan's
Strong Plea.

Leader of the March "Selenite Night" discussion, Dr. A. L. Burdick, Committee in charge of the April
"Ladies' Night" banquet—Charles H.
Henderson, John G. Baker, E. J. Han-derson, John H. Jones, and P. H.
Korot.

Over a hundred members of the Social Union club enjoyed the monthly supper at the Y. M. C. A. and the club had evening and listened to a discussion of "The Issues of the Coming Presidential Campaign" under the leadership of City Attorney H. L.
Maxfield. In introducing the subject
the leader offered this whimsical suggestion: "It would be suicide for any political party to frame its platform without first getting the ideas voted by the Social Union Club of Janesville."

Regulation of Corporations

W. W. Dale, head of the Southern Wisconsin Business College, spoke on "Federal Regulation of Interstate Corporations." The constitutionality of such regulation and the liability of states to adequately cope with the question, he thought, might be admitted at the outset. Under the Sherman Anti-Trust law combinations in restraint of commerce were declared unlawful. But discriminations, such as the selling at ruinously low rates in certain localities in order to crush a rival, were extremely difficult to stop and it was not always perfectly clear that they should be stopped.
For a law compelling a trust to sell at the same rate to all is obviously in restraint of free competition. Still, certain recognized evils seemed to demand this restraint and the speaker discussed in detail the plan of insisting on franchises as a condition of authority to engage in interstate business. This would place the government and the public in close touch with the various forms of business and under their scrutiny stock-watering and other evils might be minimized. Federal incorporation might bring about an undesirable concentration of business and overwhelm the federal judiciary, but it would bring about a high degree of publicity and permit a wholesome check on overcapitalization.

Tariff Revision

That the protective tariff is a tax on the consumer was the proposition taken for granted by W. H. Dought-erty in his discussion of "Tariff Revision." He believed that favored people were willing to pay this tax rather than force wages down to the European level, but they objected to it when manufacturers, as a condition of authority to engage in interstate business, were required to keep the quality of their goods up to the quality of the goods of their competitors. "Readjustment" was a difficult proposition owing to the complex conditions involved and abrupt and unguided efforts along this line might easily do great damage. "The speaker thought that the question should be treated without regard to politics and was inclined to favor the plan advocated by Senator Beveridge in his debates with Bryan, of having a permanent tariff commission of experts, entirely removed from politics, appointed to gather information and propose it in a fair and square effort to secure an equitable adjustment.
This Beveridgean proposition, he thought, was in accord with the spirit of the times which seeks truth in fairness and the influence which each person can exert in favor of this plan
in his own community, the speaker thought, would do as much as anything to remedy financial ills.

Law and Order

Rev. R. M. Vaughan made an earnest and moving plea for "Law and Order in National Politics." Things, he said, have a reciprocal obligation and men are responsible to law whether they will or not. Napoleon thought he was not an ordinary man and the ordinary restraints did not apply to him, but legal law took no notice of this independent position and so he had his broken home and Waterloo. Privilege, or private law, in the battle cry of certain interests
now. Two of them are predatory wealth and the liquor interests. The President in his last message leads us to believe that in his judgment
the matter of law-defying wealth is an issue. Most of the great fortunes have been based on privilege in some form or another—the standard oil or tobacco, the Carnegie millions, on the tariff; the Verkes on franchises
the Gould board, on frenzied finance.
Now if one per cent of the population owns 50 per cent of the wealth, is anyone going to convince us that this one per cent is going to be content with just one per cent of the political power? And if not, what becomes of our free institutions? The entrance of money into politics is a danger appearance may be preserved, as in Rome when Caesar came, but somebody will really be the ruling power.
Free schools and the ballot are our only bulwarks against the Prince of Privilege who runs newspapers and even preachers. That they are still strong, we are convinced, for one needs only to glance at history to know that anywhere else such a tremendous power as the predatory wealth of America would long have utterly crushed the people.

Frenzied Finance

F. M. Marzuff, speaking on "The Cause and Effect of Frenzied Finance," discussed the financial situation of the country and the effect of the financial situation on the people.

DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR
WAS AIRED IN COURT

Former Evansville Family in Serious Trouble—One Son is in Jail Here.

With one son in jail here serving a term of six months for assaulting his mother, Hans Johnson, the father, sentenced to state prison for five years, and the two girls of the family arrested as inmates of a disorderly house conducted by their father, the Johnson family which until recently lived in Evansville is a type that is not often met. Bernard Johnson, the son in jail here on a six months' sentence; the father in state prison sent from the Dane county court for crimes committed in Stoughton and the two girls in jail in Madison. A Madison paper gives the following gossamer account of the unnatural family:

"Accessories before the fact was the charge preferred against Hans Johnson of Stoughton, in the municipal court on Monday. He pleaded guilty and received his sentence this morning, the penalty being five years in prison. Johnson is the father of Hans and Olga Johnson who are serving terms of 49 days in jail for being inmates of a disorderly house. Last week they were arrested and the Andersons were each sentenced to one year in the great day reformatory for enticing the Johnson girls into their rooms for unlawful purposes.
District Attorney Mason was in possession of evidence that Johnson was responsible for the downfall of his daughters and he made startling revelations in court. In the complaint, which was sworn to by Paul J. Hanson, marshal of Stoughton, Johnson was charged with having wrongfully and feloniously aided, procured, councelled and incited Strawn and Anderson to commit a felony.

Beloit Council Awards Mrs. Katherine

(Special to the Gazette.)
Beloit, Wis., Feb. 19.—"I do not believe this claim would be allowed by the courts but as a legal test of the case would cost more than the amount requested and probably much sympathy would be shown for a person standing as does the claimant I recommend the amount be paid," said Alderman George Ingersoll in reporting to the common council the action of the judiciary committee on the claim of Mrs. Katherine Collie, wife of the Beloit college dean, who asked for $100 for injuries sustained in turning her ankle on a brick near an obstructed sidewalk. The council allowed the claim.

The Time to Advertise.

"There is no money in business unless goods are being constantly kept on the move," says the Wisconsin
(R. L.) Register, "A store which carries the same stock from one end of the week to the other is not a profitable investment. The only way to keep things moving, and this can only be done by making the public realize that you have something for sale at prices which will draw the money from the hiding places. No man or woman is ready to allow bargains to pass unnoticed; bargains will at all times with the cash, and the only way to accomplish this is to let the public know what you have to offer. The successful business man is he who at all times succeeds in reaching the public. To do that it is necessary to use the mediums which people read and which are over before their eyes.
The daily paper is the one means by which advertisers can reach the people and the community. Consistent and continuous advertising in the daily papers is responsible for the building up of many of the large enterprises of the country, and the advertiser, today, who does not reach the people through the columns of the daily paper is the business man who is complaining of dullness of the times."

RAILROADS STRUGGLE
WITH SNOW AND WIND

Fierce Blizzard Raged Between Here
and Chicago Last Night—Was Worse South of Here.

All the transportation companies operating lines between here and Chicago had a hard time with the storm yesterday and last night. The Interurban car, No. 29, with the snow plow attached, worked all last night between here and Rockford, clearing the right of way. It stopped work about six this morning and the cars have been running on time today. A gang of men were kept busy all through the night shovelling out the switches and tracks around the loop.

Practically all trains on the railroads were double headed last evening on account of the snow and as a result none of the trains were seriously delayed. With one or two exceptions the Northwestern passenger trains were on time and none of the St. Paul trains were more than thirty or forty minutes late.

Trains Nos. 65, 66, and 105, on the St. Paul road were double headed last night and today and Nos. 25, and 511
were double headed on the Northwestern road. The Northwestern road sent a snow plow north this morning at three thirty and south at ten o'clock this morning. No freight have been sent south on the Northwestern road
since seven last evening on account of the snow.

The storm was most severe between here and Chicago, especially around Barrington and Palatine and near there. North of Madison it is said that there is practically no snow.

To Aid Workers

The Bureau of Labor at Madison is making an effort to assist farmers in getting a supply of labor. Farmers who desire help, and workmen desiring to work on a farm, should write to the Commissioner of Labor
at Madison or to the Wisconsin Free Employment Office at any one of the following cities: Superior, Oshkosh, La Crosse, or Milwaukee (201 W.
Water St.). These are state offices and there is no fee. Farmers desiring help should state wages paid, kind of help wanted, whether they would pay railroad fare, etc., and persons desiring work on a farm should give references, state experience, wages desired and any other information that will enable the state to intelligently place persons desiring work on a farm.

SECURING CONTRACTS
FOR A CABBAGE CROP

Racine Concern Hopes to Secure
Two Hundred and Fifty Acres of Land Near Here.

There is a new industry starting in one midst that promises to be of practical use to the farmer in providing him with market for another crop. The Wisconsin Produce Co. of Racine are at present making contracts with the farmers for growing cabbage for their use. This is an especially profitable crop, as with an average year and proper care it will net
the grower from $75 to $100 per acre. The company expect to grow about 250 acres in this vicinity this year which will net quite a tidy little sum when put into circulation. If a reasonable success is made with the enterprise this season a large warehouse will probably be erected in Janesville.

THE THREE R'S

The greatest questions of contemporary times are nearly all popular questions. On any particular question there are three different attitudes, one of which at least every individual is obliged, willingly or unwillingly, to take. He must either be a reactionary, a revolutionist, or a reformer. These are the three R's of the individual's relations to great practical issues of our own times, says the Wall Street Journal.

If this analysis of the situation be correct, it behooves one to see in which of these classes he really stands. It may be possible that though he conceives of himself as being a reformer he may in reality be unintentionally a reactionary, or even a revolutionist. The reactionary is the extremist who clings to the past as a hope of salvation. He it is who always preaches from the text, "Let good enough alone." Even though the patient be dying he would not disturb him with a surgical operation which might save his life, for fear of causing him temporary pain.

The revolutionist, on the contrary, wants the bridges burnt behind him and would wipe out the past so completely as not to leave a shred of tradition by which the instincts of ordinary mankind are guided in the routine paths of conduct. He would even resort to the torch, figuratively speaking, and by the flame of political passion burn up the structure of the past, so that on the ruins of the old he might have a chance to build something that he would feel safe to live on.

Between these two extreme swings of the pendulum lies the sane attitude of reform. The best that there is in reform is embodied in development out of the old into the new. Real reforms are always incidentally destructive, but essentially constructive. Reforms that last grow from a less acceptable into a more acceptable state of things. Reforms that fail are usually nullified together as one would construct a building of assembled materials to suit his own tastes or the tastes of those who ally themselves with him. The true reform comes about by national endeavor to breed a better variety of thoughts and feelings in the minds of the people, just as Burbank breeds better blackberries.

THE CAMPAIGN

More than city officers are to be elected at the spring election this year, which falls on Tuesday, April 7th. The important question of choosing the twenty-six delegates for each political party as delegates to their respective national conventions in Chicago and Denver is by no means an easy task. Janesville people are also interested in the election of a supreme court justice, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late John H. Cassaday, which R. M. Bushford of Madison has been appointed to fill until his successor is elected. Janesville has a candidate of its own in the field, who is receiving endorsement of the most flattering nature, from all parts of the state, William Huger, Sr. Then come the local officials to be chosen, city treasurer and aldermen. Already the campaign is in full swing. Even though the election is seven weeks away, the candidates are already in the field. In almost every congressional district of the state the friends of Senator La Follette, a candidate for the presidential nomination, have organized and chosen two delegates and two alternates, for the approval of the people at the polls, as delegates in his behalf at the April election. The Senator's campaign committee at Madison have also chosen four men to represent him as delegates at large, thus filling the slate of twenty-six. Now comes word that the adherents of Secretary of War William Taft may also place a like delegation in the field, to contest the seats and honors with the Senator's followers. The democrats in their state convention selected their twenty-six chosen disciples of Bryan to go to Denver and so this race is on. In the judicial field, a non-partisan spirit is demonstrated. Judge H. M. Bushford of Madison and Hon. William Huger of Janesville are thus far the only two aspirants in the field and their campaign will be of that dignified nature that the honor and dignity of the office demands. Both are good men and Judge Bushford has the advantage of being in the office. This advantage, however, Mr. Huger hopes to overcome and in his endeavors he is warmly endorsed by the members of the Rock county bar. In local affairs it promises to be a warm fight. Alderman Sheldon of the third ward will not seek re-nomination and several aspirants are already in the field. In the second Alderman Buchholz will have opposition if report be true on both the republican and democratic tickets. The fourth is always a but-the-ground doubtful until the last. The fifth, strongly democratic, will probably again select Alderman Jones. In the first two republican candidates are already out and Alderman Merrill's seat is by no means secure. The supervisors will practically see no change beyond the fact that Henry Rogers, recently elected by the council to fill the vacancy caused by H. L. Skarlem, resigned, announced he will not be a candidate for election. Then there are two justices to be chosen, Judge Stanley D. Tallman will doubtless seek re-election and who the other candidate will be is yet a question. The selection of city attorney lies between Mr. Maxwell, present city attorney, and Ralph Adair. Thus far the democrats have taken no steps to name a candidate. For city treasurer it is not probable their will be any opposition to the present official, James Patterson.

THAT PARK QUESTION

That purchase of the Mitchell property for a park is worth the careful consideration of every citizen interested in the civic life of the community in which he lives. While it is perhaps looking into the dim future to see Janesville a crowded metropolis, still it is a possibility. Such a breathing spot as can be afforded by this park is worth the price paid. When old William Penn and his fellow Quakers settled on the banks of the Delaware river in Pennsylvania and founded the city of Philadelphia they laid out whole squares, every few blocks for parks, and today these little breathing places in the crowded city are worth millions of dollars to the health and happiness of the community in which they are placed. Janesville may never grow as large as Philadelphia, but it is not "Frogged America" to look into the future and purchase a strip of land for the enjoyment of those that are to come after.

THE QUIT CURE

Quit knocking.
Quit raking mud.
Quit reshaping ancient rumors.
Quit finding fault with other people.
Quit worrying about what isn't worth while.
Quit laying the blame for the panic on someone else.
Quit advising investors to take to the woods until the clouds roll by.

Mr. Bryan still insists that with Wisconsin's vote he can safely say he is a candidate. He may have the delegates' votes, but never the electoral vote that goes to Taft or some other republican nominee.

Now they say that Evelyn Thaw is to be divorced by her crazy husband just because his mother wants her to. After sacrificing all for the youth of feeble mind she married she is to be cast out.

Illinois promises to be the scene of a battle royal shortly when it is decided who is to be the choice of the state delegates from the "sucker" state at the national republican convention.

As no one appears to really favor the Aldrich bill it is safe to say it will be passed. Industry is already beginning to open its sleepy eyes and wonder who hit her.

Those New York-to-Paris racing automobilists will have a hard time before they reach Paris if the present weather is a sample of what they are liable to meet with.

Though there are lots of affinity shops in the country the average man will wait and see what leap year is going to do for him.

Where Cannon made his big mistake was that he did not secure the Illinois delegation a year ago when it was easy.

One institution that is working overtime this winter is the Ohio river.

What with high water, high finance and domestic scandals, Pittsburg is having a hard time after all.

The beautiful snow has come and now the small boy is reaping his harvest with snow shovel and broom.

Taft and Bryan show no evidence of fearing they will run out of campaign arguments before the time comes.

Chicaguan might try the injunction habit of prohibiting Pittsburg from passing along its floods.

There is going to be fun in Wisconsin before the spring rally begins if the newspaper reports are true.

Why don't former banker Morse throw a few fits and then plead insanity?

Taft continues to trot around the country making friends and delegates wherever he goes.

So King Edward Smokes an eight-light cigar. Well, why shouldn't he if he wants to?

Through some oversight the racing motor-car owners have not yet blamed Roosevelt for the weather.

Now York still continues to carpet the world with its bond issues.

Mr. Groult's house was so interesting in its art that Alexander Dumas, once told the collector that he could not understand why Groult ever wanted to leave it. "I will tell you," replied M. Groult, "it is for the pleasure of entering it again."

COX WAS ACQUITTED BY JURY OF TWELVE

After Six Hours of Deliberation Last Evening—Dr. Gibson's Suit Against Mrs. Anna Sullivan.

Testimony and arguments in the assault action brought against William Cox of Indian Ford on complaint of Jacob Rudy of Edgerton, were completed at a late hour yesterday afternoon and Judge Fifield completed his charge to the jury at 4:55. From that time until 11:40 the twelve men labored with the case. The original charge of assault with intent to commit murder was held by the court and there remained only the two counts of assault with intent to do great bodily harm and attempt to do so. Eight of the jury were for acquittal from the outset. At eleven o'clock the jury requested Judge Fifield to review his charge. Shortly thereafter they sent word that one was holding out for conviction and that they could not agree. The court requested them to exhaust every effort to arrive at an agreement and they finally filed in with a verdict of acquittal. The case was presented by District Attorney J. L. Fisher and Attorney T. R. Nolan represented the defendant. While some of those who appeared for the State were local witnesses, others appeared to the jurors as more defamers of character and this had a visible effect on the jury.

Testimony on the part of the plaintiff was taken in municipal court this morning in the action brought by Dr. James Gibson against Mrs. Anna Sullivan to collect a bill of $36.25 for services alleged to have been rendered to the defendant's mother, now deceased, some six years ago and never paid for. The defendant claims that some of the alleged services were never rendered and that she has receipts to show for the balance. The case was taken on appeal from Judge Fifield's court where the plaintiff secured judgment for one dollar. At the conclusion of the plaintiff's testimony, the case was adjourned until Friday. Dr. Gibson is represented by Attorney W. H. Dougherty and Mrs. Sullivan by Attorney B. F. Dinwiddie.

DIFFERENT KIND OF SOUVENIR.

English Tourist's Mind Somewhat Hazy on American History.

A couple of English tourists "seeing New York" were busily occupied the other afternoon in looking over the stock of a Fifth Avenue shop devoted to the sale of Indian curios and handicrafts. They were evidently investing in souvenirs of this barbaric land with which to dazzle the eyes of their English relatives on their return.

They had chosen one or two baskets, some beads and wampum, and several pairs of moccasins, and were now turning their attention to smaller things, possibly for little nieces and nephews "at home." A very gaudy "hips of peace" found favor with them, and the salesman was encouraged to bring out another trifle, a harmless-looking hatchet sort of object.

"Don't you think you ought to take a tomahawk?" he asked.

The Englishman's eyes glenomed—here was the real thing.

"I'll have it," he said, seizing it, but his wife put out a restraining hand.

"Why, John," she said, "don't buy that, we've bought one of those already, in Washington, don't you know?"

"But that wasn't a tomahawk," he objected, "they called it something else."

And he paused, his mind struggling with the intricacy of American historical relics.

"Oh, I know," he breathed with a sigh of disgusted recollection, "that was George Washington's blowed hatchet."

MAN WAS TAKING NO CHANCES.

Elaborate Precautions to Forestall the Festive Germ.

A man whose poor hearing obliges him to use a speaking tube met another man who certainly deserves to be set down as the champion foe to germs. The meeting took place in the street. The deaf man signified his desire for conversation on a certain subject. The enemy to germs listened to the question put to him, then surveyed his end of the speaking tube dubiously. Before attempting to answer he took the deaf man by the arm and piloted him into a drug store, where he called for a liquid disinfectant in which he proceeded to immerse a portion of the tube.

"These things are worse than telephones to spread disease," he complained. "I don't know who talked into this tube, I'm not going to take any chances."

The owner of the first aid to hearing looked on in consternation that was half anger, but as he was very anxious to secure an answer to his question he did not protest against the sterilization of the tube.

"Solid Comfort"

WOODROW WILSON, PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

Picture of President Wilson's home at Princeton at the upper left. Picture of "Old Nassau," Princeton university, "President Wilson is a man of presidential timber" is the title of a picture of Mr. Wilson by Grover Cleveland in 1901, when he first became the head of Princeton university.

The recent rumor from the eastern democrats to the effect that Woodrow Wilson would receive a strong backing in the east has again brought into the limelight this man of genius, energy and determination. President Woodrow's life as head of the university has not been strewn with roses. He has advocated many radical changes which hit at the very foundation of American education and found much opposition to his plan of action.

When he laid down the duties of professor of jurisprudence and politics to become president of Princeton he was the most popular man with the student body among the faculty. Within a year afterwards this popularity had been changed to a general dislike, and why? Because 10 per cent of the undergraduate body failed to pass their examinations and were dropped, but right here he showed his foresighted wisdom for he has raised the educational standard of Princeton higher than it has ever been in its existence, and now that it is established the student body has fallen in line and re-estimated him on his old popularity. His next move was introducing the tutorial system. He nearly doubled the faculty by adding to it young, active and congenial instructors who were to live with the undergraduate and meet him on his own ground. These instructors meet the members of certain classes individually and talk the subject over with them, directing their reading and giving them personal attention. This, of course, is a detail which a professor with large classes could not possibly handle. This met with much opposition at first, but now is conceded by all the great instructors to be a success. His third move is toward the social life of the university, but this has not been completed. As is known, there are no fraternities at Princeton, and while the "eating clubs" form a social center, it is President Wilson's idea that they are not entirely democratic and are apt to produce cliques, which are detrimental to the individual and to the college. His plan is to form a number of social centers in which the younger instructors and men of each of the four classes may meet in common for their meals and social life and have these centers include men of all types, so that they may become amalgamated into one strong factor of the university. This will give every man an opportunity to be part of the social life of the university. While this has not been actually accomplished, and is so far only a theory, its general plan has, to a certain extent, met with popular sanction, both among the faculty and students of Princeton and it is expected that the day may not be far distant when this will be an accomplished fact.

President Wilson has thus shown that he is a man of advanced ideas, not content to be a follower, but a leader in a sane, prudent way. He is a man of strength, both physically and mentally, and he is in the prime of life, being just 41 years old. He is well known as a contributor to magazines, a public speaker and writer.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—Members of the lower house of congress like to see a resemblance between some of their present conferees and famous men who have passed and gone. In at least three prominent cases there is good cause for advantageous and striking comparison. Congressman William Sulzer of New York is a perfectringer for the distinguished Henry Clay. Just at present Sulzer's friends in the house are apt to send out an alarm because of his continued and protracted absence, due probably to the fact that he has just assumed additional obligations at Philadelphia by way of matrimony. He has been in his seat only twice since the session began, and his friends say he has just simply got to return and assume the roll of looking like Henry Clay.

The genial Albert Burleson of Texas resembles Robert Burns more and more, as he bestows his happy smile and in his dual personality he resembles Sir Walter Scott as he turns his cheek.

The potent Edwin Denby of Michigan reminds old-timers of the talented Robert Ingersoll when he was young, and Denby is certainly an excellent likeness, in appearance, at least, to the famed orator.

Senator Manuel Legarda on the right and Senator Pablo Ocampo de Leon on left. These two men are the first delegates to the United States from the Philippines. The picture in the center is typical of the Filipino chiefs ten years ago, and is in marked contrast to the cultivated delegates to the United States.

The relations between the United States and the Philippines will soon have to be definitely defined. At present the two delegates and the politicians in the Philippines are wondering what the power of the delegation will be. Many understand that they are to have a seat in the senate, but this is certainly not so. Much depends upon the reception of these delegates and a subplot on the part of the United States may sacrifice all the beneficial results obtained by Secretary Taft's late visit. The general impression is that their status will be the same as that of territorial delegates to congress, which would entitle them to a seat in the house of representatives without a vote. But the law designates them as "resident commissioners," which may mean anything or nothing. Many hold the view that this ambiguity is simply an attempt of congress to sidestep a definition of the status of the island, and that the intention was to place the commissioners on the same plane as territorial delegates.

These two men while differing widely in their views on many questions, still are very much alike in their lives. Both were born in the same year, 1852, in the District of Manila. Both were educated in the University of Santa Thomas. Both studied law and received a degree. Both espoused the cause of the Philippine people against the oppression of Spain, and both were active in the fight for their freedom against the United States. However, after he saw the inevitable results of such conflicts, he, too, was forced to give up and seek independence through peace. These two men are vastly superior

On Getting Up Early.
I often hear fellows say that their life consists solely of coming down to business, and sleep, such a writer. What a different tale they would tell if they were only to get up early and go out of doors before they need think of business! Even if they only rose early once a week, that morning would stand out from the other six. There is a fresh and invigorating power in the early morning air which only early risers can enjoy. Ask anybody who has accustomed to rising early and going for a ride or a walk before breakfast how much better they feel to face their daily toil.

The Oldest Newspaper.
The "King Pao" of Peking, China, is the oldest newspaper in existence. It will soon celebrate its fiftieth anniversary. There are a few journals which were cradled about two centuries ago. In 1706 "The Postman" of Norwich, England, was published at a penny, "but a half-penny is not refused." The Nottingham Journal was cradled as "The Contrant" in 1710. "The Leeds Mercury" came on the scene in 1718, and "The Newcastle Chronicle" in 1761.

NEW UNITED STATES MINT AT PHILADELPHIA
Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 12.—The recently completed mint for the coming silver dollars were the second of the United States money in this city, as well as the first machinery purpose here by the government. The United States mint was established by an act of congress April 2, 1792. The first money, copper cents, was coined in 1793 in the building erected by the government on the east side of seventh street, near Market street. The first director of the mint was David Rittenhouse, LL. D., and among his successors have been Elias B. Loomis, Robert Patterson, James Ross Snowden, James Pollock, Dr. building.

YOUNG MAN HAS NEW THEORY

Human Life Seems Centered In Stomach. All Else Is Secondary.

The immense success which has followed L. T. Cooper during the past year with his new preparation has exceeded anything of the kind ever before witnessed in most of the leading cities where the young man has introduced the medicine. Cooper has a novel theory. He believes that the human stomach is directly responsible for most disease. To quote his own words from an interview upon his arrival in an eastern city: "The average man or woman cannot be sick if the stomach is working properly. To be sure, there are diseases of a virulent nature, such as cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, etc., which are organic, and are not traceable to the stomach, but even these can, in nine cases out of ten, be traced to something taken into the stomach. All of this half-sick, nervous condition that is now so common, is caused by the stomachic conditions, and it is because my remedy will and does regulate the stomach that I am meeting with such success."

No recommend the Cooper preparations as being remarkable medicine.

To sum the matter up—a sound digestive apparatus that is doing its full duty, getting every particle of vitality out of all food by transferring it to the blood is a perfectly digested state—this above all else brings health."

Mr. A. C. Brock, chef of the Brook Restaurant, Market District, Boston, Mass., who is a staunch believer in Mr. Cooper's theory and medicine, has this to say: "I had chronic indigestion for over three years. I suffered terribly, and lost about thirty pounds. I was a physical wreck when I started this Cooper medicine, a month or so ago. Today I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am no longer nervous, my food does not distress me in the least, and I have a splendid appetite. I am gaining flesh very rapidly—in fact, at the rate of a pound a day. I would not believe any medicine on earth could have done for me what this has done. It is a remarkable preparation, and Mr. Cooper deserves all his success."

SENATOR JOSEPH BAILEY OF TEXAS.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—Among the multiplicity of the conflicting ideas on the currency question comes Senator Bailey, who wants a government issue payable in gold. During the debate on the Aldrich currency bill Mr. Bailey entered upon extended remarks concerning the banking system of the country, saying that he hoped to see the time when all the issues of currency by banks would be done away with and in their place an issue of government currency, payable in gold.

He saw little difference, so far as the government's responsibility is concerned, between these two classes of currency because even the emergency circulation under consideration is ultimately redeemable in gold if the banks fail to redeem it.

Mr. Bailey said he would like to have this bill provide for $1,000,000,000 of emergency currency instead of $500,000,000.

"The time will come," declared Mr. Bailey, "when our money can be based upon the credit and issued by the government."

DAUGHTER WHO WAS TO BE BARTERED TO COLONEL SNELL.

Clinton, Ill., Feb. 19.—The story of how a mother tried to sell her daughter to a millionaire was told, chapter by chapter, in a courtroom here recently as the letters found in the old leather trunk of Colonel Thomas Snell were read to the jury.

In these letters, written by the wife of the Rev. E. A. Hamilton, a Methodist minister, expressions of affection alternated with appeals for money, and over daughter before the eyes of the old man was the young girl whose happiness a mother was ready to sacrifice for gold.

Attorney E. J. Sweeney, representing "Dick" Snell who sought to break his father's $2,000,000 will, started to read the missives in a voice so low as to be inaudible to all save the court and jury, but bystanders pressed forward in their eagerness to miss no detail of the story until it was necessary for him to elevate his voice in order that the jury might hear.

Only a few of the letters were read to give an idea of the nature of the correspondence, and, by agreement the names of women referred to were suppressed.

"I will soon have her where you want her," wrote this mother, after asking for $100. "If you would give me a home like you did I, how I would have loved you for it. Don't forget to fix that will. Won't you, won't you, won't you?"

The reading of the love letters created a sensation. Although it was known that the letters were of a personal nature yet the expressions coming from the wife of a minister and intimating that the preacher himself knew of the existing state of affairs, were such as to shock everybody.

He laughed, but did not tell her that his men had reported the first episode and that he had instructed them that Mrs. Mortimer and her friends were to do exactly as they pleased at the Pella. However, she knew it, because a garrulous gardener, proud of his service with Plank, had informed her.

"Deverly," she said, "you are a dear. If people only knew what I know!"

He began to turn red. She could see it even in the flickering lamp shot darkness. And she teased him for awhile, very gently, even tenderly, and their voices grew lower in a half serious badinage that ended with a quiet, withdrawn breath, a sigh and silence.

And now the river swept into view, a darkly luminous sheet set with reflected stars. Mirrored lights gleamed in it. Sudden bright yellow flashes zigzagged into its somber depths. The foliage edged it with a deeper gloom, over which, on the heights, twinkled the multicolored lights of Riverside Inn.

Up the broad, gentle grade they sped, curving in and out among the clumps of trees and shrubbery, then on a level, sweeping in a great circle up to the steps of the Inn.

Now all about them from the brilliantly lighted verandas the gay tumult broke out like an uproarious welcome after the swift silence of their journey. The air of jolly people keen for pleasure, the clatter of crockery, the coming and going of waiters, the guests, of handsome, courteous, victorious and scores of motor cars wheeling and turning through the blinding glare of their own headlights.

Somewhere a gypsy orchestra, full of fitful crescendos and throbbing suspensions of euphoria, furnished resonant accompaniment to the joyous clamor. The scent of fountain spray and flowers was in the air.

"I didn't know you had telephoned for a table," said Steward as a head waiter came up smiling and bowing to Plank. "I confess in the new excitement of things I clean forgot it. What a man you are to think of other people!"

Plank reddened again, muttering something evasive, and went forward with Lella.

Sylvia, moving leisurely beside Steward, who was walking slowly, but confidently, without crutches, whispered to him, "I never really liked Mr. Plank before I understood his attitude toward you."

"He is a man, every inch," said Steward simply.

"I think that generally includes what men of your sort demand, doesn't it?" she asked.

"Men of my sort sometimes demand in others what they themselves are lacking in," said Steward, laughing. "Sylvia, look at this jolly crowd! Look at all those tables! It seems an age since I have done anything of this sort. I feel like a boy of eighteen—the same funny, quickening fascination in me toward everything gay and bright and alive!" He looked around at her, laughing. "As for you," he said, "you look about sixteen. You certainly are the most beautiful thing this beautiful world ever saw."

"Schoolboy courtship!" she mocked him, lingering as he made his slow way through the crowded place. "Mr. Plank," as they arrived and seated themselves, "Mr. Steward has just admitted that he uses crutches only because they are ornamental. Let him, isn't this air delicious? All sorts of people, too, aren't there, Mr. Plank? Such curious looking women, some of them—quite pretty, too, in a certain way. Are you hungry, St-Mr. Steward?"

"Are you, St-Mr. Steward?" mimicked Lella promptly.

"I am," said Steward, laughing at Sylvia's significant color and noting Plank's direct gaze as the waiter filled Lella's slender stemmed glass. And "nothing but apollinaria," he said coolly as the waiter approached him. But, though his voice was easy enough, a dull patch of color came out under the cheek bones.

"That is all I care for, either," said Sylvia, with elaborate carelessness.

Plank and Lella immediately began to make conversation. Steward, his eyes bent on the glass of mineral water at his elbow, looked up in silence at Sylvia questioning.

There was something in her face he did not quite comprehend. She made as though to speak, looked at him, hesitated, her lovely face eloquent under the lamp. Then, leaning toward him, she said:

"And thy ways shall be my ways!"

"Sylvia, you must not deny yourself just because I—"

"Let me. It is the happiest thing I have ever done for myself."

"But I don't wish it."

"Ah, but I do!" she said, the low, excited laughter scarcely fluttering her lips. "Listen, I never before in all my life gave up anything for your sake only this one little pitiful thing."

"I won't let you!" he breathed. "It is nonsense to—"

"You must let me! Am I to be on friendly terms with—with your mortal enemy?" She was still smiling, but now her sensitive mouth quivered suddenly.

He sat silent, considering her, his restless fingers playing with his glass in which the harmless bubbles were breaking.

"I drink to your health, Stephen," she said under her breath. "I drink to your happiness, too, and—and to your fortune and to all that you desire from fortune." And she raised her glass in the starlight, looking over it into his eyes.

"All I desire from fortune?" he repeated significantly.

"All—almost all!"

"No, all," he demanded.

But she only raised the glass to her lips, still looking at him as she drank.

"They became unconsciously gay almost immediately, though the boy, scarcely accounted for the delicate intoxication that seemed to creep into their veins. Lella exchanged glances after glances with Plank. Steward, alternately the leader in it all, then the enchanted listener, bewitched, enthralled, felt care slipping from his shoulders like a mantle and sadness exhalting from a heart that was beating strongly, steadily, fearlessly—as a heart should beat in the breast of him who has taken at last his fighting chance. He took it now under her eyes for honor, for manhood and for the ideal which had made manhood no longer an empty term muttered in desperation by a sick body and a mind too sick to control it."

Yes, at last the lifelong battle was won. He knew it. He knew, too, what ever his fate with her or without her he must always go on with the battle for the safeguarding of that manhood the consciousness of which she had aroused.

All he knew was that, through the medium of his love for her, whatever in him of the spiritual remained or had been generated, was now awake, alive, strong, vital, indestructible—an impalpable current flowing from a sane intelligence, through medium of her, back to the eternal truth, returning always, always, to the deathless source from whence it came.

Lingering over the fruit, the champagne breaking in the glasses standing on the table between them, rim to rim, Lella and Plank had fallen into a low, desultory, yet guarded exchange of words and silences.

Sylvia sprang up and pushed her chair into the further corner against the bulwark rail, where no light fell except the radiance of the stars. Here Steward joined her, dragging his chair around so that it faced her as she leaned back, tilted against a shadowy column.

In the darkness his hand encountered hers on the wooden rail, and the tremor of the contact silenced her. She freed one finger, then let it rest with its slender fellow prisoners.

There was no use in trying to speak just then—utterly useless her voice in the soft, rounded throat imprisoned by the swelling pulses that tightened and hammered and tightened.

Yours seemed to fall away from her, slipping back, back into girlhood, into childhood, drawing not her alone on the gliding tide, but carrying him with her. An exquisite languor held her. Drifting deliciously, her eyes sometimes meeting his, sometimes lost in the magic of her reverie, she lay there in her chair, her unresisting fingers locked in his.

Odd little thoughts came hovering into her reverie—thoughts that seemed distinctly familiar, the direct, unconscious impulses of a child. To feel was once more the only motive for expression; to think fearlessly was once more inherent; to desire was to demand—unlock her lips, naively, and ask for what she wished.

Under the spell she turned her blue gaze on him, and her lips parted with a tremor.

"What do you offer for what you ask? And do you still ask it? Is it me you are asking me for? Because you love me? And what do you give—love?"

"Veil it with the other," he said. "I have—often—every moment since I have known you. And what a winter!" Her voice was almost inaudible.

"What a winter—without you?"

"That bell is ended for me too, Sylvia. I know what I ask. And I ask, I know what I offer. Will you take it?"

"Yes," she said.

He rose, blindly. She stood up, pale, wide-eyed, confronting him, staring into the bargain.

"I take all—every virtue, every vice of you. I give all—all I have been, all I am, all I shall be! Is that enough? Oh, if there were only more to give! Stephen, if there were only more!"

Her hands had fallen into his, and they looked each other in the eyes. Suddenly through the hush of the enchanted moment a sudden sound broke, the sound of a voice they knew, threateningly raised, louder and louder, growling, profoundly menacing.

Against, they turned in the darkness, peering toward the lighted space beyond. Leroy Mortimer, his face shockingly congested, stood unsteadily balancing there, confronting his wife, who sat staring at him in horror. At the same instant Plank rose and laid a hand on Mortimer's shoulder, but Mortimer shook him off with a warning oath.

At the same instant Plank rose and laid a hand on Mortimer's shoulder, but Mortimer shook him off with a warning oath.

"You and I will settle with each other tomorrow!" he said thickly, pointing a puffing finger at Plank. "You'll find me at the Algonquin Trust. Do you hear? That's where you'll settle this matter—in the president's office!" He stood away and looking at Plank, repeating loudly: "In Quarrier's office! Understand? That's where you'll settle up! See?"

Lella, white face quivering, shrank as though he had struck her, and he turned on her again, grinning: "As for you, you come home! And that'll be about all for you."

"Are you insane to make a scene like this?" said Plank.

But Mortimer swung on him insultingly and said: "That's about all from you! Lella, are you coming?"

He stepped heavily toward her, but Plank's sudden crushing grip was on his fat arm above the elbow, and he emitted a roar of surprise and pain.

"Don't touch him! Don't, in heaven's name!" stammered Lella as Plank, releasing him, stepped back beside her chair. "Can't you see that I must go with him? I—I must go!" She cast one terrified glance around her, where scores of strange faces met hers, and at every table people were standing up to see better.

Plank, who had dropped Mortimer's arm as the latter emitted his hollow of amazement, stepped toward him again, dropping his voice as he spoke.

"You go! Do you hear?" he said quietly. "I'll do what you ask me tomorrow. I will do what you ask if you'll go now."

"You come! Do you hear?" snarled Mortimer, turning on his wife, who had already risen. "If you don't I'll make a row here that you'll never hear the end of as long as you live. And there'll be nothing to talk over in Quarrier's office if I do."

Lella looked at Plank, rose and moved swiftly toward the veranda steps, her head resolutely lowered, the burning shame flaming in her face. Mortimer cast one triumphant glance at Plank, then waddled unsteadily after his wife.

TAKES ABOUT FIVE MINUTES TO CURE YOUR INDIGESTION

Read why nothing will upset your Stomach or remain undigested if you eat Diapepsin afterwards.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take one 22-grain Triangulo of Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective Diapepsin is used. No matter what you think your trouble—call it by any name you choose—it is certain that the real cause is fermentation of the food you eat. All else are merely symptoms or the result of this cause. For all these things you will find a sure cure in Diapepsin, and one 22-grain Triangulo, taken after your next meal, will prove this. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangulo will digest 3,000 grains of food and leave nothing to ferment or sour. Any good pharmacy here can supply these famous cures of Pape's Diapepsin, which have the complete formula printed thereon to show just what you are taking, and that it is no more harmful than candy.

Start taking Diapepsin today, and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of indigestion and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

BLOOD POISON HUMILIATING-VILE-DESTRUCTIVE

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, which is quickly followed by a red rash on the skin, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, ulcerated mouth and throat, and often copper colored spots on different parts of the body. As the blood becomes more fully contaminated with the poison, pustular eruptions and sores break out on the flesh, and in extreme cases the nerves and bones are attacked and the finger nails drop off. Then the sufferers find themselves diseased from head to foot with this humiliating, vile and destructive poison. No other disease is so highly contagious; many an innocent person has been inoculated by handling the clothing or using the toilet articles of an infected person. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the circulation, and neutralizing and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, tones up the system, and completely and permanently cures this disease. S. S. S. has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison. If you are suffering with this debasing and destructive disease begin the use of S. S. S. and get the poison out of your blood before it permanently wrecks your health. We have a home treatment book on the disease which we will send free to all who wish it, and in addition our physicians will give without charge any medical advice needed. DIAGRAM SHOWING VARIOUS CUTS OF BEEF.

Now housekeepers know the location and value of various cuts of beef. They order a porterhouse or a sirloin without any knowledge of what part of the beef it is cut from. The above diagram with the accompanying chart will clarify this and the following scale of prices shows the relative value of each cut:

The forequarters of the beef, in relation to the whole, are sized up as follows: Shank, 3 1/2 per cent; shoulder, 6 3/4; plate, 11 1/4; neck, 5 3/4; chuck, 11 1/4; rib, 10.

Hindquarters are sized up thus: Flank, 3 1/2 per cent; tenderloin, 7 3/4; sirloin, 7 3/4; round, with shank on, 18 hump, 5 1/4; skirt, 4 1/4.

No. 1, shank, 8 cents a pound; No. 2, round, 15; No. 3, rump, 8 to 10 cents; No. 4, loin, 20 to 25 cents; No. 5, rib, 12 1/2 to 16 cents; No. 6, flank, 5 cents; No. 7, plate, 5 cents; No. 8, chuck, 5 to 10 cents; No. 9, elod (fat), 3 cents; No. 10, neck, 8 cents.

CONGRESSMAN OLIE M. JAMES.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—One of the warm Bryan supporters of the national capital is Congressman Olie M. James, Democrat, of Marion, Ky. He represents the First Kentucky district and has figured prominently in the Democratic politics of his native state for many years. In his early youth he was a page in the Kentucky legislature. Although not yet 37 years of age, Congressman James is one of the most prominent Democrats of the country. He is practicing attorney and was one of the lawyers for Governor Geisel in his celebrated contest for governor of Kentucky. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in Kansas City in 1904, being elected chairman of the Kentucky delegation at both conventions. He was elected to the 58th, 59th and 60th congresses by overwhelming majorities. In the last election he had six times as many votes as his nearest competitor.

BITS OF HUMOR

NO LIMIT TO IDIOCY.

Joseph—Do you believe all this, Arthur, about men buying wives?
Arthur—Oh, I expect so! Some men will buy anything.—The Tattler.

WOMAN'S WAY.

"Geef! Dat's just like a woman. How am I to tell by dis if she's accepted me or not?"—N. Y. Sun.

THEN THE RAIN A-BAIT-ED.

Jones—Yes, I sat all day with baited breath and never caught a fish.
Jones—What did you bait your breath with?

RESULT OF REJECTION.

Flo—I hear that Mr. Flaymo is going to write a song without words about you.

Belle—Yes, I rejected him last night and it knocked him speechless.—Illustrated Dits.

SHE WAS WISE.

Bessie—I'd never marry a doctor.

A DOUBTFUL COMPLIMENT.

"Those two pigs I'll fat up to pay the taxes; those two'll pay for the children's school, and with the other three I'll begin a lawsuit against my neighbor!"—Pilegunde Blotter.

WHY SHE REJECTED HIM.

"Why did you refuse him?"
"He has a pant."
"But he can blot it out."
"Perhaps, but he can't use me as the blotter!"—Jester.

A Golf One.

At Shinnecock Hills one afternoon a New York athlete saw a poor devotee of golf retreating toward the dressing rooms disconsolately. "How many holes have you played?" the New Yorker asked. "Only three or four." "Only three or four in two hours?" cried the New Yorker. "Well," was the explanation, "it takes me so long to put the turf back."

Sure to Get Real Money.

The rushing visitor gazed at the artist's little son.

"Oh, what career is he destined for?" she asked the mother. "Will he be an artist, like his father?"

The practical mother smiled. "No, I think not," she replied. "He builds his blocks so neatly and carefully that I'm hoping he'll be a brick-layer."

Mr. Woodbury on Advertising.
A few months ago, John H. Woodbury expressed his faith in the advertising power of the newspapers, and related his successful experiences with them, contrasting them with his failure to achieve similar results in the magazines. We quote his remarks in full:

"I wanted to put my soups on the market. The obvious method was advertising. So I began a series of advertisements placing my soup on the shelves of many drugists, but somehow it didn't lure the people at large into buying my wares. I knew I had an excellent article for sale, and I pummeled my brains to figure out where the fault lay. If I had come sooner to the true solution I'd be a much richer man today.

"For seven or eight years I dragged along like that. I made enough to pay my rent. But that was almost all. For one thing, I could not for the life of me pay my advertising bills. I continued to place those small ads, and the chief result seemed to be the piling up of liabilities. At last, during the eighth year, I found I owed $18,000 for advertisements.

"Then came my idea. I wish it had come earlier.

"Without consulting my advertising man I staked everything on one stupendous deal. Going to the two best newspapers of every big city, I engaged from each of them thirteen pages of advertising space, to be used up in a series of quarter-page ads. Nothing smaller.

"No. Not magazines. I had tried them. In newspapers alone.

"It was a rather desperate move, perhaps, when I already owed $18,000 for advertising. But it was made or break. And I had faith in the quality of my soup, and its popularity, could it but once be fairly placed before the public. So I took this risk.

"The results? They were at once to come. Those quarter-page ads, run for about three months, at the end of that time I was not only able to pay for them, and to pay my long-standing $18,000 advertising bill, but I had more than $30,000 left over.

"Those newspaper ads had told the people what I had for sale and had pointed out its merits. None of my former advertising had succeeded in doing that. My goods were already in the stores. The newspaper ads told the people so and sent them there to buy. The 'turn' was past and I was on the highroad and out of the woods.

"It is such experience as that which goes to prove to me, to my own satisfaction at least, that my annual appropriation of $60,000 for advertising (the bulk of it in newspapers) is money well invested.

"I have laid out fully $1,500,000 in all in this way. If it did not bring me adequate returns I should have stopped the expenditure long ago. For a million and a half is a sum of money not to be thrown away unprofitably. To its use in newspaper advertising I am successful. Of course, that also implies a good article to be advertised; for people will not be fooled long into buying anything inferior.

"The fate of an ad. is sometimes strange. No one can prophesy just how it will hit the public. Once I inserted a two-column advertisement in a newspaper, calling for mail answers. In one day alone I received in reply, by mail, $160 in ten-cent pieces. All the time the ad. was appearing I averaged about $100 a day. That shows mammoth results by comparison with its actual cost.

"My soups cover a territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Florida to Maine. Newspaper advertisements in the cities where the soups are sold net as direct instructions to the people of those cities to become purchasers. This kind of trade cannot always be reached through any other medium.

"I once paid $2,500 for newspaper advertising at a time when the failure of the ad. to 'catch on' would have left me without 25 cents. But it DID 'catch on'—as I knew it would—and I was a heavy gather by the outlay. Both my mail business and my store sales I have found profit better by newspaper advertising than by any other means.

"There is another way whereby the newspaper eclipses other advertising mediums. Let me illustrate what I mean: Some years ago I bought in Canada a pair of elk, whose owner had trained them for business driving. They lived out in the wilds and were afraid to take the queer team into even the smallest backwoods settlement, lest the sight of houses and strangers should scare them. I bought the elk and had them shipped to New York.

"When I got them here I could at first find no one who would drive them. So I took the reins myself. They were a fine ad. for me, for the rumormongers drew from my name. New Yorkers had never seen elk driven in their parks before. Neither had any one else for that matter. It was the first team ever broken to harness.

"The newspapers took up the matter, printing stories about my odd turnout. That was a great advertisement, and a free one, besides. Now, the magazines that could not have been done. For magazines do not chronicle the little daily oddities of city scenes.

"Finding how good an ad. it was, I sent the elk, with a competent driver, on a round of the big cities. Everywhere they attracted attention, and everywhere the newspapers gave us notices.

"When they got to Pittsburgh the elk began to shed their horns, as they do every year. The local authorities had my driver arrested for cruelty to animals, claiming he had broken off the horns. It meant trouble for me to clear him, but also meant good newspaper ads.

"The elk went to Atlantic City, and there they took delight at something and plunged into the ocean, cart and all, nearly drowning my driver.

"Another time they ran away, jumping clear over a low wagon that stood in their way. All this meant publicity, but in time it grew a bit too strenuous to suit my taste, so I sold them.

"I got still more newspaper notices by introducing here the first Russian drovsky ever seen in this country. That was fine 'novelty advertising,' and the papers helped by writing it up. I couldn't have got such notices from magazines.

"The foregoing are a few of my reasons for spending most of my $60,000 a year advertising appropriation in newspapers.

"But the fact that I continue and shall continue to do so, is perhaps the greatest proof of my firm belief that the newspaper is the ideal medium for putting one's self into touch with the people at large, all over the country, and for inducing them to purchase one's wares."—Newspaperdom.

What Is the First Law of Nature?

"Self preservation is the first law of nature," answers Johnny Jones.

Correct, Johnny. Go right up to the head of the class. This law applies to a community as well as to an individual. Under the severe operation of this law a town that does not take care of itself, that does not look after its own interests first, that does not look out for Number One, soon falls into a bad way.

That's just as sure as shootin'. It's the law. We must obey the law or take the consequences. If we in this town and community do not work together for our own good, the mutual good of all of us, in all lines of business, we have only ourselves to blame if the place slides down the inclined plane instead of climbing the golden ladder of prosperity and progress.

For instance, if we do our retail trading with big city stores that have no interest in us except to get our money and keep it, local trade must suffer and shrink, town property values and farm land values must decrease—and there you are!

Johnny Jones, who knows the law, is a wise lad, but how about his papa and mamma?

Do they obey the first law as applied to the old home place? If they don't, Johnny may have to apply the law to himself when he grows up. He may have to go to the city to make a living. Let's all think it over.
